Preserve the Wild Beauty of the Headlands for the Future

The National Park Service preserves for future generations the integrity of wild places and our country's heritage. Nonprofit Park Partners also provide programs to further your discovery of the park. Staff at the Marin Headlands Visitor Center looks forward to acquainting you with the site, its Partners and park resources.

As you travel down a trail today, breathe in the invigorating fresh air, made fragrant by the coastal sage. Catch a glimpse of an elusive bobcat. Listen for the lonely sound of a foghorn. Protect this landscape and its living communities by respecting the trail use guidelines on the map. You will be preserving the Headlands' wild beauty for the future.
